I've just been going through the nrucanada.ca site and I wanted to compliment you and your team for its execution. It's a tremendous resource for reporters and I think any member of the public who takes the time to watch some of the video will get a new appreciation for the tremendous technical challenge the engineers at Chalk River are facing.

This, I think, is a good example of how an organization can "do communications" in a crisis or unusual operating environment.

Good job!
